VERA RIVERS

Central Nassau Club

National Association of Negro
Business and Professional Women's Club

Founded in 1959

Vera Rivers, a founder of the Central Nassau Club, has maintained her dedication to the organization through continuous and active membership for 50 years. She has served as president and in several executive positions.

Her organizational activities have been on local, state and national levels, and internationally as a Non-Governmental Organizations Representative for the United Nations. She was the first woman of color to serve as President of the National Council of Women of the United States, an Affiliate of the International Council of Women.

Programs supported by the Central Nassau Club include advocacy and services for families and youth in the areas of education, economic development, health, culture and civics. Fellow volunteers speaking of Ms. Rivers site her extraordinary consistency, fortitude, generosity and dedication.
